A three day IIPS national conference was organized in the city of Chennai during 25-27 March 2010, to deliberate on new and emerging scientific themes namely: demographic convergence, fertility transition and determinants, health, mortality and morbidity transition, age-structural transition and demographic dividend, labour force and migration, demography of ageing, health and well being of older population including employment, pension, social security for the elderly population and health care and health financing issues in general. The conference also extensively deliberated on key health, population and social policy challenges faced by the four south Indian states namely, Andhra Pradesh,

Cont...

Karnataka, Kerala, and Tamil Nadu, in the context of second demographic transition.

The conference was attended by a large number and a great blend of about 200 participants: government officials, distinguished researchers, veterans, senior academics, mid career and young scholars in the subject areas of demography, economics, social science and public health.

The conference provided an enabling forum and opportunity in which seniors shared their expertise and experience with young researchers while the later discussed their creative research work while learning from the enlightened veterans.

The conference was partly sponsored by the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA), and Population Foundation of India (PFI), New Delhi.

Prof. F. Ram, Prof. P. Arokiasamy, Dr. D.A. Nagdeve, Dr. Ponnappalli Krishna Murthy and Mr. P. H. Fulpagare organised this conference.

V. Panel Discussion on 'Women and Climate Change'

A half-day Panel Discussion on 'Women and Climate Change' was organised on 9th March, 2010 by IIPS. The symposium was supported by the UNFPA State Office, Maharashtra.

The programme started with a welcome address by Prof. F. Ram, Director, IIPS. In his speech, he re-iterated that the climate change is no longer a debatable issue and that the time has come where government policies need to intrinsically link climate change issues with gender perspective, as women are most affected by climate change, particularly in India. He strongly recommended that in the policies and programmes that cover issues emerging due to changing climate, women's issues must find central place and provide opportunities and services to women For their self development and not just because improving their lives would help countries achieve development goals.

He then requested Ms. Vandana Krishna, Secretary, Women and Child Development and Mission Director, NRHM, Government of Maharashtra to chair the panel discussion and carry forward with the proceedings.

Panel discussion on 'women and climate change' (L- R)
Prof. F.Ram, Prof. Kamla Gupta, Ms. Vandana Krishna, Dr.
Vibhuti Patel, Dr. D.K. Mangal

Dr. D.K.Mangal, State Programme Coordinator and Ms. Anuja Gulati, State Programme Officer, from the UNFPA State Office, Maharashtra, Dr. Vibhuti Patel, Director, SNTD University and Prof. Kamla Gupta were the guest speakers. In addition to the guest speakers, an opportunity was given to IIPS students to share their views in the panel discussion. Ms. Kshipra Jain, Ms. Nidhi Sharma and Mr. Aditya Singh, shared their views on the theme.

Dr. Usha Ram organised this panel discussion.

HOMAGE

Dr. Asha A. Bhende

Dr. Asha Atmaram Bhende passed away on 28th May 2010 at the age of 82.

She had an excellent academic career. She had three Master degrees - one from the University of Bombay (1956), one from Tata Institute of Social Sciences (1958), and one from the University of California, Berkely (1962). In 1976 she received Doctorate in Sociology from the Tata Institute of Social Sciences (TISS), Mumbai.

She joined IIPS in 1963 as Sr. Health Educator and served the institute in various capacities. In 1973 she was appointed as a Professor. She retired from IIPS as Professor and Head, Department of Population Policies and Programme on October 1988. She was considered as a best teacher in IIPS. She was also involved in research and guided students for their doctoral research. Her book "Principles of Population Studies" (Co-authored with Prof. Tara Kanitkar) is well acclaimed by all demographers and students. The first edition of this book was published in 1978 by Himalaya Publication House. Recently, in 2010, the 20th edition of this book was published .

Besides being an academican, Prof. Asha Bhende, was a well acclaimed actor and model too. Despite a demanding career in academics, she continued her passion in acting and came to be recognized as a multi faceted actress. She received the award for the best actress by the Government of Maharashtra in 1964-65. She has modeled for many commercials. Her modeling for the recent commercial advertisements such as State Bank of India Life Insurance (which won an award in 2007) and Asian Paints Tractor Emulsions (January, 2009) are worth mentioning.

On her 80th birthday, she released a book she had written on her life, titled Majhya Jagaat Me (In my own world, am I).

Prof. Asha Bhende led a very productive and fruitful life all through her life. We, the IIPS family convey our condolences to her bereaved family members.
